

U.S. immigrant rights activists chain themselves to gates of California governor's mansion

Sacramento, July 29 (RHC)-- In Sacramento, California, immigration rights activists protested outside the mansion of Governor Gavin Newsom to demand mass clemency and the immediate release of people in state prisons and immigration prisons. Protesters chained themselves to the gate of Newsom's home.

Lisa Knox, an attorney with the legal center, Centro Legal de la Raza, told reporters: "We're here today not just to ask, but to demand that Gavin Newsom live up to the values he says he holds, and free them all."

Fourteen undocumented activists and immigration attorneys were arrested at the action and released the next morning.

<https://www.radiohc.cu/index.php/en/noticias/internacionales/230032-us-immigrant-rights-activists-chain-themselves-to-gates-of-california-governors-mansion>

Radio Habana Cuba