Havana, May 6 (RHC)-- Cuban President Miguel Díaz-Canel highlighted on Thursday the historic ties with Haiti and expressed his government's willingness to cooperate with that Caribbean state.

From his official Twitter account, the president responded to a message on that platform from his Haitian counterpart, Jovenel Moïse, and assured that Haiti will always be for Cuba a sister nation, land of the first Revolution of Our America'.

"The Caribbean and history unite us. Everything we can do for your country, we will do it", he emphasized.

On Wednesday, Moïse thanked Diaz-Canel for his words of friendship with the Haitian people and reaffirmed that the collaboration 'is solid, concrete and will continue over time'.

He described as 'irrefutable proof' of this the construction of the Marion dam, a reservoir project with a capacity of 10 million cubic meters of water that had the help of Cuban technicians.
