Talks between Venezuelan government and opposition continues in Mexico?

Mexico City, September 6 (RHC)-- The Government of Venezuela and opposition forces began this Monday the fourth day of deliberations in Mexico in order to reach agreements on political matters and on the lifting of trade and financial coercive measures imposed by the United States.

The talks take place after the signing of the memorandum of understanding between both parties to reach a series of agreements that lead to the holding of elections and the lifting of economic sanctions against the country, among other points signed on August 13, under the mediation of Norway, with the accompaniment of the Netherlands and Russia.

The delegation of the Government of Venezuelan President Nicolás Maduro is headed by the plenipotentiary envoy, Jorge Rodríguez, president of the National Assembly.

On Sunday, the penultimate day of direct meetings was held in an environment of strict discretion, as had been agreed prior to the beginning of the dialogues.

On Saturday, the Norwegian government released the official photo of the plenary meeting of the delegations; and Mexico, through its Secretary of Foreign Affairs, Marcelo Ebrard, expressed its satisfaction for the meeting of the parties and wished them much success in their negotiations.

In this round of dialogues, the Venezuelan Government presented a concrete request to the opposition focused on the release of Venezuelan assets blocked abroad and the cessation of unilateral coercive measures imposed at the request of the United States.

Also on the negotiating table, at the request of the Venezuelan Government, is a statement on the legitimate rights of Essequiba Guyana.
