Barcelona forward Ansu Fati decides to avoid surgery

Havana, January 25 (RHC)-- Barcelona forward Ansu Fati decided to avoid surgery and undergo conservative treatment to recover from the injury he is suffering from in the proximal tendon of the left biceps femoris.

The 19-year-old Fati made the decision together with his family, due to his previous terrible experience with his knee injury, for which he underwent several surgeries.

While it is true that a non-invasive treatment would shorten the recovery time, the club's medical services maintain that surgical intervention offers better and greater guarantees of healing the ailment.

Fati is one of the most important players in the azulgrana squad, and after Lionel Messi's departure he was given the responsibility of wearing the number 10 shirt and the weight of the commitment that "la pulga" assumed on the pitch, but injuries have prevented him from performing regularly.
