Mexico City, November 28 (RHC)-- The president of Mexico, Andrés Manuel López Obrador, headed this Sunday the march towards the Zócalo, in the center of the Mexican capital, accompanied by tens of thousands of Mexicans who support him and defend his national project.

The Angel of Independence, located on Paseo de la Reforma Avenue in downtown Mexico City, a symbolic monument in the North American country, was the starting point for the march that also celebrated four years of López Obrador's government.

Thousands of people -- gathered since the early hours of the morning -- accompanied the Mexican president in the march that reached the Zócalo, in downtown Mexico City, where the president delivered his fourth government report, which was brought forward because of the demonstration.

López Obrador took office on December 1, 2018, after defeating the conservative candidates of the National Action Party (PAN) and Institutional Revolutionary Party (PRI) in the presidential elections.
