

Disgraced U.S. Republican representative George Santos sworn-in on Capitol Hill

Image not found or type unknown

Among the new congressmembers is Republican George Santos of New York, who's facing mounting outrage and several investigations after he admitted he lied about his work, education and family history on his résumé and campaign platform. Federal and state investigations have now been launched against Santos.

Washington, January 4 (RHC)-- U.S. congressional representatives were sworn-in on Capitol Hill on Tuesday. Among the new congressmembers is Republican George Santos of New York, who's facing mounting outrage and several investigations after he admitted he lied about his work, education and family history on his résumé and campaign platform. Federal and state investigations have now been launched against Santos.

Meanwhile, Brazilian authorities also announced this week they're planning to revive fraud charges against Santos stemming from a 2008 incident in which Santos reportedly used a stolen checkbook and a false name to make a $700 purchase in Rio de Janeiro. The criminal charges were approved by a Brazilian judge in 2011, but by then Santos was already living in New York.

Santos reportedly confessed to the fraud while still in Brazil but has recently denied having committed any crimes.

<https://www.radiohc.cu/index.php/en/noticias/internacionales/309591-disgraced-us-republican-representative-george-santos-sworn-in-on-capitol-hill>

Radio Habana Cuba