

Cubans Mark World Sexual Health Day

Havana, August 30 (RHC)-- The Cuban Sexual Education Center (CENESEX) announced an agenda of activities to mark World Sexual Health Day, September 4th, as established by the World Health Organization to promote health and sexual rights.

According to the announcement, the Pabexpo exhibit ground in Havana, will host activities on Friday, September 5th for children and adolescents, including participation games, the share of educational items and health promotion works.

Renowned singers will offer a music concert to mark the date, according to Prensa Latina news agency. The celebration aims at promoting debates on different sexuality-related subjects based on the respect for human dignity, and sexual rights, which are fundamental human rights.
