Houston, May 3 (RHC)-- In the U.S. state of Texas, a group of 31 Venezuelan men facing possible deportation to El Salvador's CECOT prison — notorious for its torture and human rights abuses — used their bodies to spell out a cry earlier this week after they spotted a news drone flying above the immigration jail where they're being held.

The men formed the letters "S-O-S" in the courtyard of the Bluebonnet Detention Facility, which is operated by the for-profit Management and Training Corporation.
