

Trans Pacific Partnership Treaty Denounced in Peru as Negotiations End

Lima, May 12 (RHC-TeleSur) — On Monday, a coalition of Peruvian civil society organizations issued a strong warning as negotiations for the Trans Pacific Partnership Treaty (TPP) came to an end.

The coalition argues that the TPP limits the power of the State to sell necessary generic medicines and take actions concerning health, environmental safety and labor rights.

The treaty, they claim, also potentially limits freedom of expression on the Internet.

The treaty is currently being negotiated in secret between the United States, Canada, Japan, Singapore, Vietnam, Australia, New Zealand, Brunei, Mexico, Chile, and Peru.

<https://www.radiohc.cu/index.php/en/noticias/internacionales/55708-trans-pacific-partnership-treaty-denounced-in-peru-as-negotiations-end>

Radio Habana Cuba