

President of Equatorial Guinea's Supreme Court of Justice Travels to Cuba for Working Visit

Malabo, December 2 (RHC)-- The President of the Supreme Court of Justice of Equatorial Guinea Juan Carlos Ondo Angue departed Tuesday from Malabo, the country's capital, for a working visit to Cuba.

The visit is at the invitation of the President of the Cuban People's Supreme Court, Rubén Remigio Ferro.

During his stay, the judicial official from Equatorial Guinea will have a packed agenda that includes negotiations with Cuban judicial authorities on the prospects for future bilateral cooperation in the field and visits to places of interest.

During a meeting with Cuban diplomats in Malabo, Ondo Angue said he highly appreciated this invitation to visit Cuba -- "a friendly country, whose people have always shown their solidarity with the people of Equatorial Guinea."
