

Turkey: Army Hits PKK in Northern Iraq After Ankara Bombing

Ankara, March 14 (RHC-teleSUR), -- Turkish warplanes bombed camps belonging to the outlawed Kurdistan Workers Party (PKK) in northern Iraq early Monday, Turkey's army said, following a car bomb attack in Ankara that killed at least 37 people.

Eleven warplanes carried out the strikes on eighteen recently identified targets, including ammunition depots, shelters and other targets, the military said in a statement.

Amid the airstrikes, Turkish President Recep Tayyip Erdogan and Prime Minister Ahmet Davutoglu stressed Monday that the government's will to fight terror has not been shaken by the attack.
